The image shows the lowercase letters 'x' and 't' in the ITC Galliard typeface. The 'x' is formed by two thick, slightly curved strokes that meet at a sharp point in the middle. The 't' is a single, very thick vertical stroke with a small, curved crossbar on the left side.

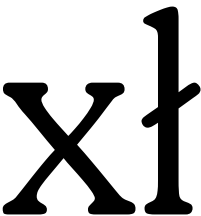

ITC Galliard

The image shows the lowercase letters 'x' and 't' in the Bauer Bodoni typeface. The 'x' is formed by two thick, slightly curved strokes that meet at a sharp point in the middle. The 't' is a single, very thick vertical stroke with a small, curved crossbar on the left side.

Bauer Bodoni

The image shows the lowercase letters 'x' and 't' in the Perpetua typeface. The 'x' is formed by two thick, slightly curved strokes that meet at a sharp point in the middle. The 't' is a single, very thick vertical stroke with a small, curved crossbar on the left side.

Perpetua

The image shows the lowercase letters 'x' and 't' in the ITC Souvenir typeface. The 'x' is formed by two thick, slightly curved strokes that meet at a sharp point in the middle. The 't' is a single, very thick vertical stroke with a small, curved crossbar on the left side.

ITC Souvenir

The image shows the lowercase letters 'x' and 't' in the ITC Garamond typeface. The 'x' is formed by two thick, slightly curved strokes that meet at a sharp point in the middle. The 't' is a single, very thick vertical stroke with a small, curved crossbar on the left side.

ITC Garamond

The image shows the lowercase letters 'x' and 't' in the Mister Earl typeface. The 'x' is formed by two thick, slightly curved strokes that meet at a sharp point in the middle. The 't' is a single, very thick vertical stroke with a small, curved crossbar on the left side.

Mister Earl